

Contents

List of Figures.....	ix
List of Tables.....	xiii
Contributors	xv
1. Introduction.....	1
Heather Christie and Megan Kasten
2. Buckle Up! Buckle Use in Burials and Shifting Gender Relations in Seventh-Century England – A Contextual Analysis.....	3
Nicola McNeil
Introduction: fluctuating funerary practices in seventh-century England.....	3
Decline in grave-good deposition	3
Gendered disparity in grave-good deposition	3
Buckles as barometers of shifting gender relations.....	4
Methodology: a contextual approach to capturing changing patterns in gendered buckle use.....	4
Results and discussion.....	5
Gendered distribution of buckles	5
Gendered buckle distribution and age	7
Gendered distribution of buckle materials	9
Gendered distribution of decorated buckles.....	9
Crosses, Christianity and chastity	10
Animal ornament, martial rights and masculinity	11
Cautious conclusions.....	14
Precarious political power	14
Increasing importance of the female reproductive role.....	14
Foundations for a fuller understanding of seventh-century England?	15
References	15
3. What Are Amulets for the Early Medieval Dead?: Rethinking Cowries in Seventh-Century Anglo-Saxon and Alamannic Graves	19
Abigail C. Górkiewicz Downer
Introduction.....	19
Characterising cowries as amulets	20
Issues with amuletic interpretations	21
The spatial and material variation of cowries in early medieval graves	21
Conclusion.....	26
References	27
4. Dating a Deceased Dutchman: The Application of Correspondence Analysis in Dutch Funerary Archaeology	31
Tim T. M. van Tongeren
The project	31
Currently available chronologies for Kent and the Netherlands.....	32
An existing chronology for Anglo-Saxon artefacts in Kent.....	32
Working with German and French chronologies in the Netherlands	33
The Dutch cemeteries in this research	34
Correspondence Analysis, a useful method	36
Conditions for Correspondence Analysis and gender specific grave furnishings	36
Preparing the database for Correspondence Analysis	36
The final preparations for Correspondence Analysis	37
Correspondence Analysis and results	38
Towards an artefact typology specifically for the Netherlands.....	38
Conclusion.....	43
References.....	44

5. Beneath the Surface: Illuminating Bubbles in Ancient Glass.....	47
Heather Christie
Introduction.....	47
Bubbles and Glass.....	47
Photographic Filters.....	48
Methodology.....	50
Results.....	51
Bubble Concentrations and Glass Bead Manufacture and Trade.....	54
Conclusion.....	54
References.....	55
6. Digital Discoveries: New insights into the Govan-Inchinnan school of carving.....	57
Megan Kasten
Introduction.....	57
Early Medieval Govan.....	57
The Govan School.....	58
Digital Imaging Techniques.....	58
Recovering Worn Patterns with Photogrammetry and RTI.....	58
Cross-proportions.....	61
Conclusion.....	62
References.....	63
7. Sculpture in South-East Scotland, AD 400-1100.....	65
Christina Cowart-Smith
Introduction.....	65
Data set.....	66
Overview of sculpture forms.....	67
The early period, AD 400-700.....	67
The middle sculpture period, AD 700-900.....	68
Case-study 1: The high cross assemblage at Abercorn.....	69
The late sculpture period, AD 900-1100.....	71
Case-study 2: The Borthwick fragment.....	74
Sculpture locations.....	74
Conclusions.....	74
References.....	75
8. The reuse of an ancient metope in the castrum of Civita di Ogliara (Southern Italy): an example of ideological intent in the Longobardian architecture.....	77
Giuseppe Russo
A short introduction about spolia.....	77
The metopes of bucranium.....	78
Area of study.....	78
Discussion.....	79
Conclusions.....	80
References.....	81
9. Roman Warlords and the Early Medieval World.....	83
Douglas Carr
Introduction.....	83
Warlordism in Roman Studies.....	83
Warlordism beyond the Generalissimo Model.....	84
Local Roman Elites as Warlords.....	84
Case Study: Militarisation and Roman Britain.....	86
Conclusion.....	90
Notes.....	90
References.....	90
10. Late Antiquity in the Iberian Peninsula.....	95
Óscar Rodríguez-Monterrubio, Zamoraprotohistorica Archaeologist
Jose Carlos Sastre Blanco, Zamoraprotohistorica Archaeologist

Patricia Fuentes Melgar, Zamoraprotohistorica Archaeologist
Raul Catalán Ramos, Zamoraprotohistorica Archaeologist
 Zamoraprotohistorica, the project. Associative Archaeology

‘El Castellón’, the archaeological site	96
Chronologies and phases of occupation	97
The excavations. Investigations at El Castellón	98
Interpreting the Late Roman Town	99
The defences.....	99
The urban layout.....	100
The furnaces	100
The storehouse.....	101
The granary.....	103
The church.....	104
Interpretation of the data to reconstruct the past.....	104
The economy	104
The society	107
Conclusions	108
References	108