

CONTENTS

	Page
List of Contributors	i
Preface and Acknowledgements	iii
Introduction
D. R. Green and C. C. Haselgrove	vii
Some problems in cross-disciplinary communication as viewed from archaeology and geography
Part I
Section 1. Frontiers, Boundaries and Group Interaction
3
S. Haselgrove	5
Critical self-consciousness and beyond: some theoretical perspectives
J. A. Alexander	13
Frontier studies and the earliest farmers in Europe
A. Anderson	31
The role of a competition model in the archaeological explanation of economic change
I. R. Hodder	47
The maintenance of group identities in the Baringo district, western Kenya
L. Newson	75
The law of cultural dominance and the colonial experience
C. Renfrew	89
The anatomy of innovation
Section 2. Ecological Perspectives on Social Behaviour
119
R. F. Ellen	121
Ecological perspectives on social behaviour
T. P. Bayliss-Smith	129
Maximum populations and standard populations: the carrying capacity question
C. Gamble	153
Resource exploitation and the spatial patterning of hunter-gatherers: a case study
D. R. Harris	187
Group territories or territorial groups? Comments on an inter-disciplinary problem in cultural ecology
C. P. MacCormack	197
The cultural ecology of production: Sherbro coast and hinterland, Sierra Leone
Commentary to Part I
M. D. I. Chisholm	213
Across the Rubicon

	Page
Part II
Section 3. The Analysis of Settlement Pattern and Social Form 223
R. Fletcher	Issues in the analysis of settlement space 225
J. Gledhill	Formative development in the North American South West 241
B. K. Roberts	Rural settlement in County Durham: forms, pattern and system 291
A. Macfarlane	The peasantry in England before the Industrial Revolution. A mythical model? 323
B. Hillier, A. Leaman, P. Stansall and M. Bedford	Space Syntax 343
Discussion
E. R. Leach	Does Space Syntax really "constitute the social"? 385
B. Hillier et al.	Reply to Professor Leach 403
Section 4. The Concept of Early State Formation 407
J. Cherry	Generalization and the archaeology of the state 411
R. Hodges	State formation and the role of trade in Middle Saxon England 439
D. Nash	Territory and state formation in central Gaul 455
P. Richards	Environment, settlement and state formation in pre-colonial Nigeria 483
Commentary to Part II
J. R. Lewis	Round the Mulberry Bush 519

LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS

- J. A. Alexander, Department of Archaeology, University of Cambridge.
- A. Anderson, Department of Anthropology, University of Otago.
- T. P. Bayliss-Smith, Department of Geography, University of Cambridge.
- M. Bedford, School of Environmental Studies, University College, London.
- J. Cherry, Department of Archaeology, University of Southampton.
- M. D. I. Chisholm, Department of Geography, University of Cambridge.
- R. F. Ellen, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Kent.
- R. Fletcher, Department of Anthropology, University of Sydney.
- C. Gamble, Department of Archaeology, University of Southampton.
- J. Gledhill, Department of Anthropology, University College, London.
- D. R. Green, Department of Geography, University of Cambridge.
- D. R. Harris, Department of Geography, University College, London.
- C. C. Haselgrove, Department of Archaeology, University of Durham.
- S. Haselgrove, Van Mildert College, Durham.
- B. Hillier, School of Environmental Studies, University College, London.
- I. R. Hodder, Department of Archaeology, University of Cambridge.
- R. Hodges, Department of Prehistory and Archaeology, University of Sheffield.
- E. R. Leach, King's College, Cambridge.
- A. Leaman, School of Environmental Studies, University College, London.
- J. R. Lewis, Department of Geography, University of Durham.
- C. P. MacCormack, Department of Social Anthropology, University of Cambridge.
- A. Macfarlane, Department of Social Anthropology, University of Cambridge.
- D. Nash, Ashmolean Museum, Oxford.
- L. Newson, Department of Geography, King's College, London.
- C. Renfrew, Department of Archaeology, University of Southampton.
- P. Richards, Department of Geography, School of African and Oriental Studies, London.
- B. K. Roberts, Department of Geography, University of Durham.

M. J. T. Spriggs, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University.

P. Stansall, School of Environmental Studies, University College, London.