

Contents

List of Figures.....	vii
List of Colour Illustrations.....	x
List of Tables.....	xi
Foreword.....	xiii
Introduction.....	1
Defining Buddhist Monasteries	1
Defining Spatial and Temporal Boundaries	2
Previous Research.....	3
The Significance of the Topic	5
Research Methods.....	5
1. Monastery Layout in Early Medieval China: Textual Evidence	9
1.1. The Introduction of Buddhism and the Establishment of Early Monasteries in China	9
1.2. Buddhist Monasteries in the Northern and Southern Dynasties.....	12
1.3. The Buddhist Monastery System during the Sui and Tang Dynasties.....	14
2. Monastery Layout in Early Medieval China: Archaeological Evidence.....	17
2.1. Monastery Layout in the Mid-Fifth Century: the Yungang Monastery in Pingcheng.....	17
2.2. Monastery Layout in the Late Fifth Century: the Siyuan Monastery in Pingcheng and the Siyuan Monastery in Longcheng	18
2.2.1. Siyuan Monastery	18
2.2.2 Siyuan Monastery	20
2.3. Monastery Layout in the Early Sixth Century: the Yongningsi Monastery in Luoyang	20
2.4. Monastery Layout in the Late Sixth Century: the Zhaopengcheng Monastery in Yecheng	27
2.5. Monastery Layout in the First Half of the Seventh Century: the Linggansi Monastery and the Qinglongsi Monastery in Chang’an.....	34
2.6. Monastery Layout in the Mid-Seventh Century: the Ximingsi Monastery in Chang’an	38
3. Monastery Layout in Early Medieval China: Development and Evolution.....	41
3.1. The Buddhist Monastery: Main Buildings and Auxiliary Buildings	41
3.1.1. Entrance	41
3.1.2. Perimeter wall, portico and roofed corridor.....	41
3.1.3. Pagoda.....	41
3.1.4. Buddha Hall	41
3.1.5. Lecture Hall	41
3.1.6. Auxiliary buildings.....	42
3.1.7. Compound.....	42
3.2. Monastery Layout: Types, Periodization and Distinctive Features	42
3.2.1. The ‘Central Pagoda’ monastery (mid-fifth century).....	42
3.2.2. The ‘Central Pagoda and One Hall in the Rear’ monastery (late fifth to early sixth century).....	42
3.2.3. The ‘Central Pagoda and Halls on Different Axes’ monastery (mid to late sixth century)	42
3.2.4. The ‘Multi-compound and Multi-hall’ monastery (after the mid-seventh century).....	42
3.3. The Evolution of Monastery Layout from the Northern Wei to the Tang Dynasty	43
4. Monastery Layout in Early Medieval East Asia: Archaeological Evidence and Research.....	47
4.1. The Korean Peninsula: Monastery Layout during the Three Kingdoms and Unified Silla Periods.....	47
4.1.1. Goguryeo Kingdom: ‘Central Pagoda and Three Halls’ monastery layout	47
4.1.2. Baekje Kingdom: ‘Central Pagoda and One Hall in the Rear’ monastery layout.....	49
4.1.3. Silla Kingdom: ‘Central Pagoda and One Hall in the Rear’ and ‘Central Pagoda and Three Halls’ monastery layouts.....	57
4.1.4. Unified Silla: ‘Central Hall and Twin Pagodas’ and ‘Multi-compound and Multi-hall’ monastery layouts ...	59
4.2. The Japanese Archipelago: Monastery Layout during the Asuka and Nara Periods	66

4.2.1. Late sixth to first half of the seventh century: ‘Central Pagoda and Three Halls’ and ‘Central Pagoda and One Hall in the Rear’ monastery layouts	68
4.2.2. Mid-seventh century: ‘One Pagoda and One Hall Side by Side’ and ‘One Pagoda and One Hall Side by Side with a Central Hall Behind’ monastery layouts	73
4.2.3. Late seventh to mid-eighth century: ‘Central Hall and Twin Pagodas’, ‘Central Hall and One Pagoda on Different Axes’ and ‘Multi-compound and Multi-hall’ monastery layouts	81
5. Monastery Layout in East Asia between the Fifth and Eighth Centuries: a Comparative Analysis of Monastery Layouts	95
5.1. The ‘Central Pagoda and One Hall in the Rear’ Monastery Layout: Its Diffusion	95
5.2. The ‘Central Pagoda and Three Halls’ Monastery Layout: Its Origin and the Contacts between North China and the Korean Peninsula	96
5.3. ‘One Pagoda and One Hall Side by Side’ and Several Other Monastery Layouts in Japan: Their Origin and Meaning	105
5.4. The ‘Central Hall and Twin Pagodas’ Monastery Layout: Its Origin and Significance in Unified Silla and Japan	106
5.5. The Main Monastery Layout Types and their Evolution	109
6. Monastery Layout in Early Medieval China and East Asia: Form and Function.....	113
6.1. The Chinese Pavilion-Style Pagoda: Origin and Meaning	113
6.2. The Development of Buddha Hall: from India to Japan.....	121
6.3. The Relationship between Multi-compound Monastery Layout and Urban Layout in East Asia	128
6.4. The Interaction between Space and Function in the Layout of Buddhist Monasteries	134
Conclusion	141
Bibliography	143
Primary Sources in Chinese, Korean and Japanese	143
Secondary Sources.....	146